EDIMBURGH. Sept. 26. 1787

At a Meeting of the Tackforen of the Street

Dung of Edinburgh.

Being Thirty of the Farmers who live within three miles of the Toll Bars

THE Meeting had under their confideration, the intimation in the newspapers of an intended application to Parliament, for making some alterations in the Turnpike Laws of this County; and being cortainly informed that one of these alterations is to subject DUNG to pay a toll, or to be carried in broad wheelled caringes—The Meeting, after mature deliberation, are unaminosity of opinion, that such an alteration will be highly detrimental to farming in this part of the country.—To use broad wheelled carriages in any case, will be attended with great disadvantage, and in some cases next to impossible.—
It will effectually put a stop to the using of single horse carts in hulbandry-work, one of the greatest improvements that has been introduced for lessening the expence of carriage.—
To pay a toll for Dung, is what the farmer will not be able to afford, and of course must tend greatly to reduce the high state of cultivation the lands around this metropolis have been brought to of late. They consider it to be a measure that will operate in a very oppressive and partial manner, as it is only calculated to affect those chiefly residing within four miles of Edinburgh, who already pay considerably more tolls than it takes to keep all the Roads they travel on; and far more in proportion to the advantages derived from them, than what is paid by those who live at a greater distance.—
They are paying a penny, nay, the greatest part of them

Trustees for the Turnpike Roads; but the unsupportable weight of the load they are threatened with, impels them to sife ereay, legal endeavour to avert a grievance that will be selt in so ferious a manner; for although the burden will ultimately fall upon the proprietors, the tenants must bear it during the currency of their present leafes.

Therefore, the Meeting appoint David Johnston in Corstophin, George Robertson in Granton, Robert Cleghorn in Saughton Mills, Thomas Scott in Craiglockart, Samuel Johnston in Niddry, James Bell in Greenbank, with Peter Handyside in Showsair their Prefes, any three of whom to be a quorum, as a Committee to attend the first Meeting of Handyside in Showsair their Preses, any three of whom to be a quorum, as a Committee to attend the first Meeting of the Truspeces for the Turnpike Roads, and to present a memorial in their name, stating the hardship that such an alteration would subject them to; and they empower the Committee to meet, and co-operate with the Gentlemen and other Farmers who will be aggrieved by the measure, in taking such steps as may be deemed nearffary for preventing the hardship from coming upon them; and appoint these their refolutions to be inferted in the Edinburgh newspapers. Signed, by appointment of the Meeting, by Signed, by appointment of the Meeting, by PETER HANDYSIDE, Prefes.

officers and men. After the reivew was over, Colonel Pearse gave a public breakfast to the corps, and a very numerous company of ladies and gentlemen. Amongst others present, were the Right Hon, the Governor General, the Hon. Mr Stuart, Mr Shore. Colonel Ross, General Carnac, &c. &c. On Monday last arrived from China the Britannin show, Fowler. She lest Canton the 27th of December, and Macao the 1st of January: she touched at Malacca on the 14th, where the found the Company's ship Worcester, which cannot reach China before next season.

Of the 30 ships which failed from England for China, 28 had arrived. The London, which had been seen lately pretty well to the eastward, daily expected; and the Worcester, complete the number. Two had sailed from Canton, some time before the Britannia lest it; five more were loaded, but a stoppage to trade, for ten days, having taken place, of course they could not sail till that period was elapsed. This stoppage was the essential thermal police, not the consequence of any misunderstanding between the Chines and foreigners.

A good deal of tea had come down the country; but many of the Indiamen would not sail till late for England.

Next to a change of Ministers at home, is wanted a change of Ministers abroad. It has been observed by Lord Bacon, "that a monarch is never respected at the Court of another, unless he is properly represented there." For this reason, it has always been the care of an able Minister at home to fend able Ambassadras abroad.

But this principle, so wise, and so just, which has been construed by the experience of ages, and is, in title if, so manifelly obvious, that it wants neither explanation, nor recommendation, has been of late reversed.

Hague, Sept. 15. This night a courier arrived from Verfailles with accounts concerning the resolution taken on Saturday latt relative to the Prussian Minister. The above courier brought the trench King's entire approbation of the conduct of the Province of Holland, and that his Majesty is firmly of opinion, that the faid Province could not have acted otherwise, if they meant to maintain their Sove-reignty; and farther, that his Majesty affured the Province of Holland of his full affiltance, and that he had ordered his Secretary of Legation to request to know how many troops they with to have. France has also declared to Prussia that if the Prussian troops are not drawn off from the frontiers of the Republie, the French Ambaffador would be recalled from · Berlin.

Hague, Sopt. 16. The States of Holland and Weil Friseland affembled yesterday and to day ex-traordinarily, on account of the Prusian troops having entered on the territory of the Republic. They were admitted the 13th into the cities of Arnheim and Nimeguen, from whence they march in different columns to advance farther into the country. It is faid that the passage was demanded by one of these divisions, through the territory of Overyssel, but not granted. As another division has advanced towards the fouthern part of Holland, and by that means the cuty of Utrecht might be attacked on the fide of the last province, where it is not sheltered, whils the Statkholderian army might approach the other fide. Circular letters are made out at the war office, and will be iffued this day, for augmenting the regiments of infantry on the British establishment, by adding one ferjeant, one drummer, and fourtees privares to each company. Two companies are also to be added to each regiment, confliting of one captain, one lieutenant, one enfign, three ferjeants, three corporals, two drummers, and fifty-fix privates; with one company more, for the special purpose of recruiting, to confist of one captain, one lieutenant, one enign, eight serjeants, eight corporals, four drummers, and 30 privates.

The press of Friday evening and Saturday was not confined to the metropolis alone; warrants were fent to all the ports of the kingdom : and it is funpofed failors fufficient have been procured to man fix or eight fail of men of war immediately. In the river, &c the East and West Indiamen, vessels in other trades, colhers, and even coasters, were ftript of their men, and only fufficient left to bring the vessel up to her moorings. In Kent-street, in the borough, and fome other parts of the town, fimilar obnoxious, the neighbourhood has been clear ed entirely; none but the aged or really decrepid having been spared.

The chief occasion of the late Admiralty orders for fome ships of war to be immediately equipped, which caused the sudden press on Friday evening, is in order to collect a fquadron of strength to oppofe any French fquadron that may make an attempt to come into the Channel; it being expected, that the first diversion France will make in favour of the Dutch faction, if hosfilities should continue, will be on Zealand, which cannot be done without a naval force, and that of confiderable strength.

The infurance of hipping immediately has rifen, rom Holland, four per cent. on the Jamaica voyage, but with a special warranty against all the consequences of any attempt from

In the Amsterdam Gazette of September 18. ve are informed that the States, of Holland and West Frizeland had left the Hague, and were to hold their assemblies at Amsterdam, but this intelligence appears to refult from the many confuled reports which the fugitives brought with them.

Our Ministry have iffued press warrancs, and the usual offers of bouncies to volunteers for the navy, as a fleet is to be immediately fitted out, provided the French march their troops against the Prushans. But the private letters from Amsterdam do not mention that there were any information received of the march of the French troops; the Prussians have already done more for the Stadtholder, than the French will be able to undo in a whole campaignt and there is every reason to believe that the general submission of the mal-content provinces will follow the event of last week. The submission of the pro-vince of Utrecht, without blood hed, and the subsequent proceedings of the States of Holland in difarming the volunteers, are favourable fymptoms.

A mail is ex effed this day with further accounts of the progress of the Prussian troops. The mails, of Saturday brought no Gazettes from the Hague, or, we need not add, from Utrecht.

If the Duke of Brunswick succeeds in vindicating the rights of the Stadtholder and the old contintion in the prefent inflance, the French faction in Holland is d + royed for ever.

It is expected that a convention of the States General and Provincial will be held to take into confideration the plan of mediation proposed by England and Prussia, but the preliminary article is the restotation of the Stadtholder to all his offices and dignities.

A morning paper fays, we can with confidence fire our readers, that the Prince of Orange is related in all his rights, even by the States of Hold unanimously: He made his public entry into Hague on Thursday in the afternoon. His car-Hague on I nuriday in the afternoon. His carterms drawn in by the populace; and he was ratulated by ail the public budies. The revono is nearly complete: The town of Amíterdam te holds out: how long that can do it with efmay eafily be judged, when there is not even appearance of a French army to give countece to the few who are still averse to the true con-ntion, and independence of their country.

Advices from Holland inform us, that the Stares removed from the Hague to Amiferdam, in fequence of the late rapid motions of the Prushan ops, which have passed Hattem, and had taken lesson of several sluices intended by the parriots hundate the country, and that the Stadtholder's neuter or declared against him.

In consequence of the last advices, stocks were Saturday morning done at 67, but at twelve had up to 694.

The Prince of Brunfwick, at the head of the nuffian army, attended by the Prince of Orange, no had taken poffession of the fluices, were on eir march and within ten miles of Amsterdam, hen the express, who brought this intelligence, me away. The patriots every where fled precipi-tely before the army.

straft of a letter from a gentleman at the Hague, to his friend in London, dated Sept. 18. "It is with the greatest pleasure and satisfaction hat I address you at this time, as public affairs have hanged within these twenty four hours entirely in our favour. On Friday the news came that the Proffian troops were on the Dutch territories, which eave us great hopes that we should soon see matters fettled. On Sunday the news came that Useach was given up to the Prussian troops without any bloodshed, as the Salm troops and volunteers went out at one gate, while the Prussians entered at the other. We heard at the fame time that the Pruffans were got to Gorcum. You are to know that the Vry corps or volunteers fome time ago took the oaths to the States of Holland, which was perform ed with great ceremony in the camp, after which the volunteers went to Woerden to thing two pieces of cannon, which they elected into town with great joy and triumph on Thursday, and louged them in the Hall where the State watch is kept, confifting of forty men, relieved every evening lines Sunday last. Every hour brought us more agreeable news, fo that many of the Patriots, at least the heads of them escaped to Amsterdam. I went to bed this morning about three o'clock, and was foon waked by the agreeable news that the Orange was trium-phant, and that no perfon appeared without fome-thing of that colour, and that in the night nine Switzers with a ferjeant had made themselves maffers of the watch and the cannon mentioned above; this was followed by rejoicings the whole day—not a foul appeared without Orange ribbons, cockades, See the Magistrares were obliged to hang out the Orange slag from the church and Stadthouse; the patroles appear with Orange cockades; this evening there is to be illuminations, and all the Barghers are to be under arms to keep the peace, as it is apprehended some mischief may be done to the Patriots, or such as remain, for the greater part have fled, or come over to the Prince's side. We have a report, that the Prince and whole family may be in town this we the a circumstance which will oc-casion great joy. I inclose you a bit of the slag of Vry corps which was cut in pieces, and sent in bits to the wish of every staunch friend to the Prince."

Extract of a letter from Rotterdam, Sent. 18. "The last three days have produced a nost won-derful and sudden revolution in Holland. The world is not unacquainted with the various violent measures pursued for some time pass by the party which called themselves Parriots, and which were at last got to a most unparalleled height of oppression. Even so late as the latter end of last week, the most unconflicational refolves took place; but fuddenly a change is feen in affairs. It has happened the definy of Utrecht, that city which from the first shawed itself the most forward in depriving the Prince of Orange of his prerogatives, and overturning the old confitutional government, should be the first to undergo disgrace and strame; and netwithstanding the fortifications raifed, and fums expended in keeping troops there, they were fummoned together last Sunday morning at three o'clock, by their General. the famous Rhyn Graaf van Salm, and informed, that the Guelderland troops, in conjunction wi those of Prussia, were marching down to attack the town, which, as it was not possible for them to defend it, must be abandoned, which was accordingly done with all possible speed. Gorcum was summoned to surrender at six o'clock yesterday morning and taken, a few mor being only fired into it. Durt has surrendered by indicate the content of the conte has furrendered this day, and Gouda is mastered by the Orange party of its own inhabitants. Rotterdam has agreed to furrender on the first approach of the troops, who are expected here to morrow noon. Nothing is now feen in this town but Orange cockades, and every mark of attachment to the long perfecuted house of Orange. However, every mea-fure is taken to preserve the peace of the town, and an understanding has taken place between the two parties, which was first nobly offered by that of the Orange. It is surprising to behold the patriotick party, that daring language and haughty deportment which hitherto diffinguished them, is vanished; they are quite confounded and crest-fallen, and several of their leaders have fled the town.

"The Prince's party in the Hague are likewife triumphant; and we hear continual accounts of the fame prevailing in the other towns and villages of Holland, which cannot fail of becoming general

Yesterday, the Presbytery of Edinburgh met

Tuesday morning, an express arrived from London to Sir Charles Douglas; and, on the fane fore-noon, that gallant officer fer off for his feat of Olive Bank, from whence he is immediately to proceed to London. The natural conjecture from this circum-stance is, that Sir Charles, if there should be any occasion for his services, will be employed on the prefent occasion; nor is there perhaps an officer in the Royal navy more worthy of having a confpicuous command.

Monday night, and early on Tuefday morning. there was a very hot press at Leith and Newharen, when, it is faid, upwards of three hundred men were feized, and fent on board the renders in Leith Roads. The prefs warrants arrived here late on Monday nights by Capt. Manly of the Royal Navy. who came feveral hours fooner than the post, fo thet there was not the smallest suspicion of such an event taking place, till the orders were actuall a jut in execution, by which means, as may naturally be suppofed, many more hands were picked up than otherwife could have been procured. The first informa-tion the Captains of the men of war in Leith Roads received of this business, was an order to fend the press gangs aftere, which was instantly complied with.

This city was likewife put in great alarm on Tuefday morning, by some of the failors and marines having come up, without any authority from their officers, and under the pretence of promoting the fervice, preffed feveral of the inhabitants, some of whom they extorted money from, and others they ill used and hurt. These fellows had even the an-dacity to parade the freets of the city, with drawn cuttaffes, in broad day lights, and to behave in a most riotous and difforderly manner, infulting every per-fon they met, till, by order of the Lord Provoit and Magistraces, they were apprehended and committed prisoners to the Cicy-guard. They were afterwards brought to the Council Chamber, where the Lord Provoit himself attended, in order to investigate into an affair fo truly subverfive of law and good government, and so highly insuling to the citizeus of the metropolis of Scotland; but the fellows apof the metropolis of peared fo much intoxicated with liquor, as to render any enquiry at that time altogether impossible; they were therefore remitted back to the guard. A precognition was afterwards taken, when nothing criminal having come out against any of the people who had been apprehended, except one, they were fent aboard again. It appears that the fellows who really did the mischief, had got down to Leith, and by that means eluded discovery.—The press warrants are limited to fea port towns.

they had a very heavy florm of thunder and light-ning. Two men standing in a smith's shop near Cupar, were struck apparently dead by the lightming:

Cupar, were freek apparently dead by the lightning; after a confiderable time there appeared some faint returns of life, and they are yet alive; though in a very languishing fate. Their watches, it is faid, were melted in their pockets.

We tearn also from Dundee, that the lightning there was remarkably vivid, accompanied with loud peals of thunder, and a great fall of rain.

The florm of thunder and lightning, on Saturday afternoon, was very slightly felt at Edinburgh.

A quarrel happened ar Dundee on Wednesday last (which was fair day) herween two butchers; they fought with bludgeons; one of them with an unsucky blow was killed apon the spot; the unfortunate manis same was Elder. It is very associating though they were surrounded with numbers, the mob neither offered to separate them, nor to secure the man after he had killed his antagonish.—Diligent search is making after him.

The confusion we are in is not to be expressed, and we expect every moment that our town will be plan-dered.—The troops are not yet here, but we ex-pect them every hour.—The resolution they have pect them every hour.—The refolution they have taken is, as foon as they appear, to deliver over the town.—At Doff and Gouda they have pluodered every house.—It is not to be expressed what quantity of people has deserted from this country, as you see nothing else but people running away from their houses and towns.—We have given up all hopes; and I may say, this country is ruined for expressions. hopes; and I may lay, this country is ruined for ever.—We expect a mot terrible night. 4 Yesterday, when the Aberdeen siy eame to the river side at this loce, the passengers stoing the water swelled by the and so the side to venture over, till they should as to the stood; they therefore desired the driver to ford it with the massime, and if he should get over, to come back and fetch them. He did so, and got safe to the other side; but, in coming back, the carriage was overfet, and carried down the river. The lad swam ashore, and ran down the bank of the river a good way, when he jumped in and get hold of the horse, which he saved by cutting the traces. The sly was recovered about a mile below where it was carried off."

Extract of a letter from Aberdeen Sept. 25.

4 On Saturday anoming last, a vessel was drove ashore on the fands, near Broadhill in the links; and was known to be the Henry, Gally, from Sunderland with hime shells. As there was no person on hoard, and a great part of the vessel burnt, it was conjectured that she had caught fire, by the water getting in to the lime, and that the crew had taken to their boat, and perished, as from the boisterousness of the night and the high sen, it was judged impossible for a boat to keep assout ten minutes.

4 On Saturday evening we learned, with equal surprize and pleasure, that the crew had got safe into Peterhead. Yesterday the mate came to town, by whom we learn, that the vessel was first discovered on Friday forenoon to be on fire off the Resince hay, in the evening, and would have got into port, but for the great fresh in Dee; they then anchored the vessel, and took to the boat about eleven o'clock at night, with very little hopes of furviving; they took into the boat a small cadge, and some ne-cessers, till morning. In a short time, however, a wave broke over them, carried off the cadge, and silled the boat within a sew inches of the particle. They were then obliged to leave themselves to the souls of the sadge, and silled the boat within a sew inches of the cadge, and silled the boat within a sew ever, a wave broke over them, carried off the cadge, and filled the boat within a few inches of the authors. They were then obliged to leave themselves to the course of the current, and drive before the wind along the coast. At last, after incredible fatigue, they got into Peterhead bay about fix in the morning, where a pilot boat took them on board, and carried them ashore.

" If the weather keeps moderate, the reffel may be got off, and repaired."

of constant rent, which is punctually paid by the tenants and seuers—It is believed there are sew citates in Scotland on, which the arrears are so inconsiderable.—The estate is found degree the boardary of the city of Glasgow on the cast and there is a constant demand on that side for ground to build on Notwithstanding the check given to the trade and manusatures of the town by the late war, an increase of almost 300 L a-year has been made to the rental of this estate most 300 i. a-year has been made to the rental of this estate, by building-feus fince 1770. The feus have been chiefly granted to manufacturers; and as the number and oculence granted to manufacturers; and as the number and oculence of that discription of the inhabitants are daily increasing, there can be no doubt that the e-must be a constant increase of the demand for ground, by which the rent of this effaire must rise very rapidly, without trouble or expence to the proprietor. In 1784, the increase of the ren a from fewing was only 61. 16s—In 1785, it was 631 13s—In 1786 and 1787, it was 731 6 s. 6 s and it these last years it would have been more, but it was the less attended to, on the fewed ground give the most undoubted security for the account of the projected fale of the lands. The house built on the feued ground give the most undoubted fecurity for the feuedaty, which hitherto has been very moderate, and has always been most punchually paid. The casualties payable by heirs and singular successors amount to a considerable sun yearly, which is not included in the rental. and these house do considerable sun yearly, which is not included in the rental. and these house do considerably more than pay the expence of management, in case the purchaser chooses to uplift the rents by a factor. There are a good mansion-house and offices on the estate, well fitted for the accommodation of a large family, and fatuated near the Clyde, to the bank of which the estate extends.—The garden is large, of a good soil, and stocked with fruit trees of the best kinds.

There is also a quantity of valuable timber on the grounds, valued at near a 1000 l. great part of which may be caty without hurting the look of the place.

The barony of Barrowsield is valued in the cess-books at 975 l. Scots, and this valuation has been subdivided by the Commissioners of Supply; and as the progress and titledeeds are perfectly complete, two treebold qualifications, and almost the half of a third may be made upon it, at little or no expence.

The teinds either belong to the proprietor, or are hissons.

no expense.

The teinds either belong to the proprietor, or are bishops tiends of the Barony of Classow, of which the town of Classow have had tacks for time immemorial, which are from time to time renewed in Ex hequer, and the benefit of which the town is taken bound to communicate to the heritors. The pro-ortion of teind tack-duty payable for this charte is included in the above-mentioned 59 l. 24.8 declared for only in burdens.

this estate is included in the above-mentioned 59 L 28. 6 deducted for public burdens.

Unon the whole, it may be observed of this estate, that although its extent of land be not great; ye from its vicinity to the city of Glasgow; the punchual payment of the rents and senducies; and the certainty of an increase of rental by additional seus, it is a very described purchase for such performs or communities as with to have their money well secured upon landed property.

The upset price of the whole will be 22,500 L which is not twenty-one years purchase of the rents and feu-duties, and only sour years purchase of the rent of the coal which amounts to 1101. Sterling If the purchaser inclines, it is probable that great part of the price will continue in his hands upon heritable bonds already secured on the cluster. state is not fold togeth
